ABSOLUTELY AGAINST DIVORCE

Uncompromising Teaching of Catholic Church Emphasized by Mission Father at St. Patrick's-Women's Mission Closes-Mission for Men Begins.

"What God hath joined together let no man put asunder," the words of the Holy Bible, the words of Christ, emphasized the sermon which Father the Matthew, the Franciscan missionary, delivered from St. Patrick's publit Saturday evening to the congression. To give false testimony of the congression. Saturday evening to the congregation of 1,500 or more women of the par-ish who have been attending the mis-sion exercises during the week. The missionary's text was from the gospel of Saint Matthew, "What does it prof-it a man if he should gain the whole world yet lose his own soul?"

The sermon was a warning to those young women, sometimes aided and abetted by ambitious mothers, who marry for wealth, or social advance-ment, not taking into account the character of the man, above all, his religious opinions and practices.

Three States Considered.

Father Matthew consderied the three classes of women in the world, those classes of women in the world, those called to a religious vocation, women married and women single. He rebuked those selfish parents who put obstacles in the way of their daughters who hear the call of God to enter the religious state, that they may devote their lives to caring for the sick and suffering in hospitals, to the poor and aged in homes, to dependant orphans in asylums and to teaching the children in parish schools.

The mission Father narrated a touching incident—it proved to be that of his own father—who after his wife's death, when he was left with si_X sons and an only daughter, refrained from opposing the girl when she felt herself called to become a nun. For 25 years she has labored zealously in her chosen vocation, winning more con-verts, the preacher declared, than he had during his 21 years as a priest Unmarried Women.

Women who remain unmarried mismany of the cares and responsibilities which fall to the lot of the married woman and to them much of the progress of a parish is due Women Who Shirk Their Responsibilities. The preacher defined with exactnes the duty of the married women and pictured the old age of the woman who defles God's laws, piling up offence after offence, until, in age, she faces a mountain of sins. In this regard, as in the matter of mixed marriages, it is not so much the woman

As to Catholics being married in any way except that prescribed—before a priest and in the presence of two witnesses—the church holds such ceremonies, performed either by a non-Catholic clergyman, or a justice of the peace, as of no account and considers a woman under such circumiders a woman under such circumstances no more married than is a poor prostitute in the streets of New York.

Contract Binding Till Death. On the subject of divorce the preacher was equally emphatic. Marriage is a sacrament, the Catholic woman in marriage makes the promise "till death do us part." So, too, no Catholic woman can be joined to a divorced man, or in case her nondivorced man, or, in case her non-Catholic husband has obtained a di-vorce from her, she cannot re-marry during his lifetime. She is still his wife in the eyes of the church, although they may have been separated for years. What God hath joined to-during the services.

One of the prettiest autumn weddings took place Soturday evening. Oct. 14, at 6 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Kendall on Boswell avenue when their daughter. Myra Adella, was united in marriage with Henry Frank Cole. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. J. Bohanan, rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal church, the double ring service being used. Following the ceremony, a reception The bridal party entered the parlor to the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin, played by Miss Fannie Kendall, the bride's sister. Selections were softly rendered during the ceremony.

Little Miss Dorothy Alquist, niece of the bride, acting as flower girl, led the bride, acting as flower girl, led the bridal procession. She was followed by the bridesmaid, Miss Margaret Kendall, sister of the bride. The bride entered the parlor on her father's arm and was met by the groom and the best man, R. true testimony in a court of justice, lies, calumny, detraction and rash judgments.

To give false testimony, either by swearing to a lie, or to what one only surmises to be true, deals a four-fold wound to God, since it is a sin against truth, justice, charity and re-
